ONE MAN'S OPINION--The notion that America is a democracy is an example how a lie told 1,000 times becomes the truth. We started as a republic, but we are devolving into a democracy where the factious nature of Group Rights is leading to a civil war. People conflate our republic with a democracy because many top positions are elected.

Democracy is supposed to give such people a voice. The technocrats and political elites would take that voice away - if it does not say what they want. 2. Culture wars and identity politics. These are incredibly dangerous for democracy because they result in people just knowing that their 'group' is right and that others are obviously evil.

The 10 greatest threats to democracy

Since Classical antiquity and through the modern era, democracy has been associated with "rule of the people", "rule of the majority", and free selection or election, either through direct participation or elected representation, respectively. Political thinkers have approached critiques of democratic political systems from different perspectives. Many do not necessarily oppose democracy by its simplest definition - "rule of the people" - but, rather, seek to question or expand this ...
