How to play the Stonewall ~~Stonewall Attack~~

The Stonewall Attack is a chess opening characterized by White playing their pawns to d4 and e3, playing Bd3, Nd2, and then playing pawns to c3 and then f4; although the moves are not always played in that order. The Stonewall is a system; White heads for a very specific pawn formation, rather than trying to memorize long lines of different variations. If White

The Stonewall Attack is a special setup played by White. It is not played at top level chess events due to its dubious nature. I used to play it for some time. It is easy to play with White if your opponent doesn't know it. But Black can give you a hard time if he has prepared some lines against it or if he knows how to handle it.

The Stonewall Attack is a fierce and extremely aggressive attack with white playing d4 and an eventual f4. My understanding has always been that it is not played at the GM level since it ultimately can be refuted; however, at most tournaments, if played correctly this attack is enough to overwhelm many expert players.
